Chapter 35.7: Reminder: The Pavilion of the Divine Legacy

The Pavilion of the Divine Legacy is a sanctuary and training ground strictly for the Sung Clan and its immediate members.

The True Purpose of the Pavilion

The Pavilion of the Divine Legacy was built not as a base for the armies of the Divine Triad but as a sanctuary dedicated exclusively to the growth, unity, and prosperity of the Sung Clan. While the immense forces of the Divine Triad required vast universes and realms to operate, this pavilion was an intimate space, crafted for the clan's immediate members to thrive and prepare for their responsibilities in the multiverse.

A Fortress for the Sung Clan

The pavilion’s defenses and resources were tailored specifically for the protection and growth of the Sung Clan, ensuring they could focus on their divine duties without interference.

1. Defensive Layers:

Sealed by a fusion of shadow energy, celestial light, and dragonic flames, the pavilion was impervious to intrusions from any external force.

A guardian array, activated by the combined will of the second clones, ensured protection even when the clan was away.

2. Compact Yet Grand:

The pavilion was grand and luxurious but deliberately designed to house only the clan and their immediate descendants. Its size reflected its exclusivity.

A Training Ground for the Clan’s Prodigy

The pavilion served as the primary training ground for the next generation of the Sung Clan.

1. Personalized Training Chambers:

Each member of the Sung Clan, from Sung Ye-Jun to Sung Ye-Rin and their descendants, had access to customized training chambers. These chambers adjusted to their unique abilities, focusing on their inherited powers of shadow, dragon energy, and celestial light.

The chambers were capable of simulating complex battle scenarios, multiversal conditions, and elemental manipulation exercises.

2. One-on-One Guidance:

The second clones, in their roles as the clan’s guardians, offered personal mentorship, ensuring each member reached their full potential.

Techniques like shadow conjuration, dragonic transformations, and elemental mastery were taught directly, preserving the teachings of the Divine Triad.

A Sanctuary of Unity and Reflection

1. The Main Hall of Unity:

This hall served as the heart of the pavilion, where the clan gathered for decision-making and family events.

Adorned with relics and banners that symbolized their lineage, it was a sacred space for reinforcing their shared purpose and bond.

2. The Gardens of Tranquility:

Though small in comparison to the vast realms of the Divine Triad, these gardens were a peaceful retreat for the Sung Clan.

With magical flora and flowing streams imbued with restorative energy, the gardens provided a space for meditation and recovery after intense training.

A Home for the Clan’s Legacy

1. Personal Residences:

Each family within the Sung Clan was given a residence tailored to their needs, blending divine luxury with practicality.

The homes served as places for rest and nurturing, fostering the growth of the next generation.

2. The Library of Infinite Knowledge:

Though smaller than the repositories of the Divine Triad, this library was curated specifically for the Sung Clan. It housed texts on their ancestors, their powers, and the multiverse’s history, ensuring that future generations understood their divine heritage.

A Beacon for the Future

While the pavilion was modest compared to the vast universes of the Divine Triad, it was vital in shaping the Sung Clan’s future. Here, the clan’s descendants prepared to carry forward the legacy of the Absolute Humanoid Being, the Absolute Dragonic Being, and their family, ensuring that the balance of creation and destruction would be upheld for generations.

In this sanctuary, the Sung Clan solidified their bond, honed their powers, and stood ready to face whatever challenges the multiverse might bring. The Pavilion of the Divine Legacy was not just a home—it was the heart of the Sung Clan’s eternal mission.
